

Matthew Endacott, NAGF Director since 2018

Since graduating in 2012 from USYD with a Bachelor of Economics and then in 2013 with an BA (Hons), Matthew has worked in the project management and policy development area, and then after adding a Master of Urban Renewal and Housing from UNSW in 2017, in strategic urban policy and the development and implementation of strategic urban policy and plans. Matthew has held positions with Port Stephens Council, Urbangrowth NSW, Hunter Development Corporation and presently is a Senior Consultant – Urban Renewal and Engagement with AECOM.

Matthew brings skills in strategic planning, management, monitoring and evaluation, planning, advocacy, public & media relations, and an understanding of government (local, state and federal) to our Board.